

THE PROGRESSIVE WORLD - “A walkthrough on what an individual is blessed with.”

The life of an individual from birth to death are categorised into different set of stages through which an individual inherits the qualities of wisdom, maturity and competency that supports to serve his purpose in his life. In general, individuals are said to experience these stages at a particular chronological age but whereas the fact is that, every individual experience a particular stage at a particular state of mind and hence the general categorisation that has been defined in terms of chronological age of an individual is not valid and no individual can be guided or oriented keeping this formula of categorisation.

Mental age of an individual is to be considered for us to know and understand the specific guidance or support an individual is in need of. Mental growth or the wisdom of an individual depends on the environment he or she is subjected to. Therefore environment or the stakeholders of an individual play a key role in the growth and development of an individual, a family and the entire world.

In the recent days, the training of an individual to survive in this world starts even before the soul enters the world, the expecting mother ensures that she listens to inspiring conversation, good music and they also start reading and seeing chart with smaller words, thinking it would get registered to the child and help them to be a “born genius”. What a child becomes comprises of two factors, first is the inheritance transferred through genes and secondly its the environment they are exposed to. If the parents are educated and specialised in a particular field, their child is eventually introduced to the field through inheritance. Children basically are a step ahead of the skills and talents of their parents because through inheritance, parents transfer their learning to their kids.

So, yes, listening to or reading stories with good morals, listening to good music, listening and reading inspiring words or conversation will benefit the child, it will definitely have an impact on the child but enforcing our dreams on to them is wrong. With all that they have inherited their dream or aspiration in life could be different for the timeline and the advancements in the environment. Imposing parents dreams on children will obviously pull back the world’s development a generation back because parents dream was for the environment and scopes they had when the world was 25 to 30 years aback of the world’s current development.

Giving Independence and freedom to children doesn't mean they are the authority, its just that they are enabled with liberty to express what they think and feel. Independence here doesn't mean that they are not bounded to anything in life and can dominate everyone or anything around them. Independence to children is just a scope enabled to explore, experience and nurture the individuality within. With time, we must ensure that at any point the child is able to justify its activity to be inline with the principles of our constitution and with the principles of Universal Declaration of Human Rights. Freedom always comes with responsibility.

Be it the parents, school or society, everyone are bound to transfer and teach the principles of the government to the upcoming generation. World is not what is procedured in the present, world is what is principled by the fundamentals of the government. And that is why it is important that we groom the individuality of individuals than monotonising them with the practises of routine. Keeping the children lively and in full bloom is more important than pushing them into the realm of survival that forces them to be driven and in stress.

Opportunities to life are not just one, path to prosperity is not in the trend of the world, success is not limited and neither is development by the fundamentals of government. Understanding and cognising ourselves with what we have destined is important so that our efforts are oriented towards the vision, so that our efforts are for the purpose and for the life and living to be peaceful and comfortable.

What our Fundamentals say? Since this content is for global population, lets look into the fundamentals thats universal. The constitution of the nations are also bound to adhere to these fundamentals principled universally. Universal Declaration of human rights is the provision that enables every single individual to design their own dreams, life and destiny without getting caught into the clutches of routine or common facilitation.

Firstly, it says, “ All human beings are born free and equal in dignity and rights. They are endowed with reason and conscience and should act towards one another in a spirit of brotherhood.”

“ALL HUMAN BEING ARE BORN FREE AND EQUAL IN DIGNITY AND RIGHTS” - Every single individual born in this world are blessed with a special talent or skill that is unique to that builds their individuality where the self-esteem, confidence, dignity and respect of an individual nests. Education, employment, development prospects for every individual must be for this individuality that forms their strength. Autonomy, freedom and the apex status to the government is not to stipulate and sleeve in outspread of the world’s opportunities and scopes to average and granting opportunities to people that fits within the officiated space of average but the status of grandee to the government is enabled for it to accommodate the heterogeneous nature of the world where opportunities for the population can be enabled individual specific regulating the efforts and thoughts of the global population towards social progress and prosperity which is a source to enable individual well-being, progress and prosperity.

To “govern” - a word derived from the greek word “Kubernan” which means to steer. Therefore, it clearly evidences the role of common citizens in government. Firstly, it is we the individuals as a citizen must come forward to claim the provisions that were enabled to us by the fundamentals of the government. People form the base of government to function, not because of they elect the representative but because its with peoples contribution the government can regulate or cumulate the development of the region. Its the duty of the government to regulate the diverse interest and skills of it populace towards the common goal of social progress and global development. Strengthening the economies of nation is not in its imports or exports but in the productivity contributed by every single individual of its population with the national and global resources. So economy of the nation depends upon how well the scopes are enabled for an individual to employ his individuality (something that he is best in). Practise, facilitation and functioning of the society, organisation or the government cannot be for procedure or routine. If an individual claim satisfies the principles drawn through the fundamentals, it becomes a mandate for the government to facilitate it. The government cannot deny saying that the claim is new and is something different from the procedure or routine followed.

If the individual specific claim for opportunities to education, employment and development is in contradiction to the principles derived through the Constitution or UDHR, the government has the responsibility to debug the claim with the conviction of the concerned individual. At no point an individual who approached government for an opportunity cannot turn back with a denial. If the claim made is progressive, it must be facilitated if its not progressive, it must be regulated to fit in with the principles adopted and then be facilitated. - “THEY ARE ENDOWED WITH REASON AND CONSCIENCE”.

When the opportunities enabled to the global population are for the individuality owned by them, there will never be any intersection of opportunities within them, there won't be any scope for comparison or competition, every single individual will be assured with opportunities to progress and prosper in their life which will eventually seed and spread the quality of brotherhood amongst them. Competition, jealousy, selfishness, coveting, grudge are all because with the concept of average standards the world has enabled “uniformity” in the name of “equality”. We want the world to be equal, so we singled out a specific pattern under the formulas of average and officiated it as a procedure. Cleverness, backstabbing, cunningness, trickery are all also because of this misinterpreted facilitation of Uniformity in the name of equality. So, when individual specific facilitation that is principled by UDHR is enabled, the world will be connected with brotherhood. - “AND SHOULD ACT TOWARDS ONE ANOTHER IN THE SPIRIT OF BROTHERHOOD”.

Not only the design of opportunities but even it enables us to design our own standard of living like equal pay for equal work, free choice of employment, just and favourable working conditions, right to justified remuneration ensuring the worthy existence for self and the family, support of social protection, right to rest and leisure including limited working hours and periodic holidays. What is that we could conclude from all of these? Its not an mandate to cut short our best to average for ourselves to fix within what is facilitated by the government, When we know our skills, we get to know the purpose of our life and at this point we are free to design our own opportunities to education, employment and development without looking for what has been officiated or framed by the government as general, routine or common.

So the world is really not competitive, we have made it competitive for our ignorance.

What an individual could do to bring about this change? An individual's education starts not when he is taught with the alphabets and numbers. It starts with the day when we teach him his surroundings. So the first teacher to any individual is his parents and family. Childhood is a fresh phase in the life of an individual where the soul enters the world and starts experiencing life, it is in this phase individual's soul and mind is without any stereotypes or pre-conceived thoughts. So, in any activity they do, it is always them and the task, they don't have any procedures, they simply see the purpose and complete it. This kind of approach is very much essential to be encouraged and nurtured but unfortunately parenting in the routine is completely opposite to this. Because of the concept of routine and standards, we think that there can only be one way of doing things and that is what we usually follow. "Interdisciplinary", "Innovation", "Individuality", "Holistic", these "Triple I-H" concepts are very much interconnected and are the essential components to keep the world progressive. Individuality is essential to keep alive the interdisciplinary aspect of the world which will help the world to accomplish holistic development. For the world to be rich in purposeful and beneficial innovations, it is essential to keep alive both the concepts of Individuality and Interdisciplinary.

The amusing part of nature is that a new born child is rich in all these qualities and unfortunately in the process of parenting and upbringing, we iron out these qualities from them in the name of routine, procedure, average and standards. It is important to provide a liberated and unrestrictive nurturing pattern to the children. They must not be labelled ignorant or incognisant. They must be allowed to freely express their thoughts and ideas. It is really important to bring all their thinking and approach to transparency and accountability because, it is important to orient all that they perceive and understand from the world to help them stay progressive.

Introduce them to social concepts, make them get cognised with general and social topic through discussion. Introduce them to an environment that enables them to analyse things happening in their surroundings, through discussion facilitate them an opportunity to share what are all the aspects they perceived and what all got registered within them. Allow them to share their opinions and alternatives, regulate them if their perception violates the real purpose of the activity or if the principles learned violates those principled through human rights. Don't ever restrict or impose them with regulation that will iron out their individuality or uniqueness to make them get fit in the routine facilitated by the society. Society or routine is not what is facilitated in general, but it is what every single individual of the world contribute and share. Nurturing or facilitation is not about leading to success or development it is about guiding to success and development of individuals, individually. Living is not about being led through out, it is about being guided to unveil countless paths to success, social prosperity and progression. So it is important not to instill restrictions or constraints within individuals. Thoughts are not to be accompanied by limitations or restriction, it should only consider the purpose. When we limit the thinking or living of individual, it takes the life into sustenance. The world is wide-open and so are the opportunities for life and development. The earth is evolving every second into something new that demands the world to re-orient and innovate its activity into different dimensions. When we restrict or iron out the originality to a common standards or average set, we are training the world to sustain with an out-dated living pattern which will never progress and allow us to accomplish anything purposeful.

Another important aspect here, is the control imposed onto to child in the name of respect and discipline. Respect is not in blindly obliging to what one says, the true meaning of respect is to feel a deep admiration for someone for their ability, skill, quality or something done for the skills and ability of an individual. Ultimately, respect is the again the space and recognition given to the individuality of an individual not the definition we have enabled as to follow what is commanded for the reason that it comes from the elders. Next is, Discipline, discipline is derived from the latin word “Disciplina” which means instruction given, teaching, learning, knowledge” therefore discipline is not the practise of training people to obey rules or a code of behaviour, using punishment to correct disobedience but “Discipline” is about strengthening the conscience of an individual that would teach them the difference between humane and inhumane qualities, eventually guiding them to lead a purposeful life rich in the values of humanity.

It is true that parenting, nurturing is all about orientation and regulation but that doesn't mean inscribing or programming procedures or fixed stipulation for living. When our living is controlled by stipulations and procedures, we become robot. Allow them to experience and experiment life on their own, there is not better education than experiencing world. Don't brand anyone incapacious, useless, or scapegrace. Mistakes are part and parcel of life, people grow only by the lesson they learn from mistake. Though, similar mistake in alternates must be regulated. Proving oneself to be best in all they do is not possible. Humans are prone to errors. It is common to commit different mistakes because each time we commit a mistake we learn something new that helps us to grow and unfurl different paradigms of the world which is essential for holistic and progressive development demanded by the world at present.

If you find a mistake, indicate it to the concerned individual and if possible guide them to correct it, instead if we are to brand them with their mistakes, it is the greatest injustice we could ever do to humanity. Don't ritualise the activities and living, let the world enjoy diversified approach. The growth or the development of the world will be complete or holistic only when the approach towards the unified goal is diverse and interdisciplinary.

Rearing a child is like scripting on a clean slate, it must be towards social prosperity and progression with the serene qualities of humanity. Don't teach your kid to fight or struggle, just teach them to be their original, they will find their own place and it is sure to be remarkable than the place we could route to them. Only when we want our kids to be in the sector that is in trend, there will be lot of pressure and competition because we route the entire generation into a single field or sector that make the world sectoral and competitive. Parents, first need to understand the opportunities that is facilitated to the world through the fundamentals of the government. They must get cognised with the opportunities facilitated through the constitution of their region and through the universal declaration of human rights. Getting cognised with these aspects are important because, they need to enable an environment for their children that is rich in the principles and opportunities facilitated through these fundamental of the governing body. When every children from the upcoming generation are strong in practicing and functioning inline with the fundamentals of the government, it would become a mandate for the world to reform itself inline with the fundamentals because when everyone in the world changes, the world changes. So, than reasoning out the world and the changes to be idealistic, when everyone could focus on what is principled by papers, life is easy.
